VII. Ensuring Effective Communication

- A. When choosing an auxiliary aid or service, clients will be asked their preference. Any uncertainty about what method of communication is effective in a particular situation is to be resolved by the SPOC.
 - 1. Employees are required to use the Communication Assessment and Auxiliary Aid/Service Record (Form CF 761) to conclude the method of communication the client considers the most operative. A record of this information will be maintained in the client's file.
 - 2. During the initial screening and intake, BP staff will develop a communication plan for any client who requires auxiliary assistance using the Communication Assessment and Auxiliary Aid/Service Record (Form CF 761). This will identify all foreseeable Aid Essential Situations and the appropriate method of communicating with the client during his/her/their time in a BP program. Each auxiliary aid a client is provided with must be documented in the client's electronic health record.
 - 3. If the SPOC determines, after the assessment is complete, that the communication aid is not essential and does not warrant provision of the auxiliary aid or service requested by the client, the SPOC will document the request for denial of the requested service and will document the date and time of the denial, and sign and date the documentation using Form CF761. The client's assigned case manager will provide the client with a copy of the denial.
 - 4. If a client is provided with an alternative auxiliary aid or service other than the aid that was requested, the SPOC will document the alternative choice and why it was requested on Form CF761.
 - 5. BP staff will identify clients who are Limited English Proficient (LEP) and document in the client's electronic health record the preferred language for communication. BP employs individuals who are fluent in English, Spanish, and Haitian Creole.
 - 6. The range of communication options for persons who are deaf or hard of hearing includes, but is not limited to, the Florida Relay Service, Telecommunication Devices for the Deaf (TDDs), facsimile, CART, Video Relay Service (VRS), phone amplifiers, cell phone texting, qualified/certified sign language interpreters, certified CART providers, flash cards, lip-reading, written notes, supplementary hearing devices, charts, signs or a combination of these options, as appropriate.

7. BP has an obligation to approve requests and obtain the appropriate auxiliary aid or interpreter service. A list of agencies and organizations that may be able to assist in ensuring accessibility for individuals with disability and/or limited English proficiency is available in Appendix A – Resource Listing.
 8. Auxiliary aids, services, interpreters, and/or certified CART providers, will be provided within two hours of request. When advanced notice for a specifically requested auxiliary aid, service or interpreter is not given, alternative services will be provided. The services provided will be documented in the client file and subsequent referrals will be set in advance and will not require future needs assessments.
 9. The use of auxiliary aids and services, certified sign-language interpreters, certified CART providers, translators, or foreign-language interpreter will be at no cost to the client.
 - a. LEP language services include the availability of qualified bilingual employees able to communicate directly with clients in their preferred language.
 - b. Face-to-face interpretation will be provided by a qualified contract or volunteer language interpreter when a bilingual employee is not available.
 - c. When an interpreter is not available or when services are needed for an unusual or infrequently encountered language, BP will identify an appropriate individual/manner of communication.

 10. Interpreters must be 18 years of age or older.
 11. Incorporation of vibratory alarms, tactile communication, and Braille display shall be incorporated into relevant services.
 12. If the client declines the offer of a free foreign language interpreter, the free sign language interpreter, or any other offered auxiliary aids or services, the assigned case manager must document this election on Form CF761 and ensure that the form is uploaded to the client’s electronic health record.
 13. The assigned case manager must provide a Customer/Companion Feedback Form to each client who is deaf or hard of hearing.
